Biodiversity refers to the variety of life forms around the world and the ecological processes they are part of. In Antalya, some of the endemic plant species include: Sand Daisies, Sand Lilies, and Side Monster Weed.

To help protect these endemic plants:

- Be careful not to harm species like sand lilies or Side monster weed when visiting these areas.
- Do not pick, uproot, or step on them.
- Do not enter these areas with ATV vehicles.
- Be aware that there are many ways we may unknowingly contribute to the destruction of these valuable plants.

HISTORICAL SITES

Cultural Heritage is Fragile.

Many people today do not realise that cultural heritage is subject to risks from sudden natural disasters such as earthquakes and floods, slow-moving processes such as pollution and other human activities.

Even the most innocent behaviour, such as taking small pieces of old pottery or mosaics as souvenirs, can be destructive when repeated by thousands of people.

Touching a textile, stone or metal object leaves oil stains or acid from sweat.

Climbing a historical building causes it to erode and disintegrate.

Writing or engraving a name causes irreparable damage.

Travelling with large bags or backpacks in narrow and crowded environments can knock over a piece or scratch a picture on a wall, causing it to be destroyed.

There are countless ways in which we unwittingly contribute to the destruction of cultural heritage.
